But this winter the city persuaded him to sell out, and now Asbury Park has a new 80-foot esplanade, nearly a mile long, straightaway—the finest beach promenade on the Atlantic Coast. Landscape artists are now working on the problem of beautifying the beach hetween the promenade and Ocean avenue. A new casino, a new band stand, a new ocean pler and a new system of jettles to build out the beach still farther are to come in the near future.

With a crowd considerably larger than usual, the season formally opened a week ago, although it did not really get under way until to-day. For the Fourth a big crowd is always assured, but this year the influx was especially heavy on account of the double joilification—the nation's birth-day and also the dedication of the new board walk. With a congratulatory address by Governor Murphy of New Jersey, and with a procession up and down the beach, and with choral music, the resort and its visitors dedicated the new promenade to the spirit of recreation.
